This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

CHATEAU RAMEZAY.

THE CHATEAU DE RAMEZAY

"There stands no building the length and breadth of the Dominion, around which associate so many of the thrilling events, episodes and social life of our history, as pertain to this Château, the oldest public building in the country. Not only in French days but in those of our own era this building has occupied a prominent focal point from which diverged some of the greatest events of our history." Under the French régime the Governors were appointed for the honor of the position and so regarded it. The salary was small and they had to pay for public as well as private entertainments and build their own palaces.

Claude de Ramezay, the 11th Governor of Montreal, appointed 1703, was born in France 1657, was of Scotch descent, a grandson of a Sir John Ramsay, captain in the regiment raised by Sir John Hepburn, in Scotland, in 1635, for service in France.

DeRamezay came to Canada in 1685, with a number of other young officers, in the suite of Governor de Denonville. He was then a lieutenant in de Troye's company, of the Marine troops, which later took part in the expedition to Hudson Bay. His promotion was rapid, being captain in 1687, later colonel, then commandant of troops and finally governor.

In 1687 he took part in the expedition against the Iroquois and in 1690 when Phipps appeared before Quebec, he brought over 800 men from Montreal for the defence of the former town.

History tells of the spirited defence made by Frontenac and his gallant officers, the latter, no doubt, being encouraged by the bright smiles of some of Quebec's fair daughters who it seems lost no time in rewarding their brave defenders with their heart and hand, Scarcely had the last of Phipps' fleet disappeared around Pointe Levi, than de Ramezay was married to Melle. Marie-Charlotte Deny's, a daughter of Deny de la Ronde one of the oldest and wealthiest families of Canada. His example was soon followed by de Vaudreuil, d'Ailleboust and many others. Could they have seen into the future their happiness would have been mingled with sorrow, for it was destined that a son of de Ramezay should be the one to open the gates of Quebec to the English in 1759, and a son of de Vaudreuil should do likewise, at Montreal, the year following.

De Ramezay was one of the most prominent men of his time, occupying an official position in Canada for a term exceeding forty years. He was Seigneur de la Gesse, deMontigny et Boisfleurent, in France, and in Canada was Seigneur de Monnoir and de Ramezay, Knight of the Military Order of St. Louis, Governor of Montreal, and Commandant of all the militia in the country, and was Administrator of the Governor-Generalship during the two years' absence of de Vaudreuil in France.

The Chateau was built in 1705. The neighborhood was then the fashionable part of the town and was occupied by the Baron de Longueuil, the Contrecœurs, d'Eschambaults, d'Aillebouts and Madame de Portneuf, the widow of Baron Bécancourt. Situated on a hill and opposite to the magnificient garden of the Jesuits, this plain unembellished house had an open view to the river front.

Under de Ramezay's regime, 1703 to 1724, this venerable edifice was the hall of entertainment of the illustrious of the country. The many expeditions to the distant fur fields, the voyages of discovery of new lands, the councils of war, the military expeditions, the conferences with the Indians, the annual fairs and fur trading market attracted to the shores of Montreal, not only the Governor-General, the Intendant, and their suites, but a considerable number of the most important people of the country including all classes of society. To one and all the portals of this hospitable mansion were ever open. To the lowly Indian and his squaw and to the exalted nobleman and his consort, the noble and beneficient Ramezay and his family showed equal attention. Fearless to the Indian or enemy, his bravery and charity were equally exemplified in the personal care and attention he and his family gave to the suffering citizens of Montreal during the pest which devastated the town in 1721.

De Ramezay died in 1724, and his family sold the Chateau to the "Compagnie des Indes" in 1745. The latter retained possession until the cession, 1763, when it was bought by Wm. Grant, Baron de Longueuil who in turn disposed of it to the English Government for the sum of two thousand guineas. It thus became once more the residence of the Governors and remained such up to 1849.

In 1775-6, the Chateau was the Head-quarters for the Continental Army under Montgomery, and in the spring of 1776, there came Benjamin Franklin, Carroll of Carrollton and Samuel Chase envoys sent by Congress to influence the French Canadians, to join the revolted colonies. Then came Benedict Arnold who occupied the Chateau for several weeks.

Lord Metcalfe was the last resident governor, but for some years after his establishment in a new government house the Chateau was used for departmental offices. When the government was withdrawn from Montreal the Chateau served several purposes. For several years the courts were held here, and later the Normal School.

In 1894, the Chateau was sold by the Government and purchased by the Corporation of the City of Montreal and in 1895, the Numismatic and Antiquarian Society obtained the building for the purpose of founding an Historical Portrait-Gallery and Museum.

THE VAULTS.

No. 1. In this vault the first printing press in Montreal was set up in 1776, by Mesplets who accompanied Benj. Franklin, and the other two envoys who had been sent by Congress in the Spring of that year. Mesplets, who was a Frenchman, remained in Montreal after the Americans withdrew, and opened a printing office on Place Royale where he published the Montreal Gazette.

———o———

No. 2. In this vault may be seen an ancient caleche, which, it is claimed, was made in 1741. It is known that as far back as 1797, it was then out of use. The caleche was the most stylish vehicle in the olden time.

By purchase.

———o———

No. 2½. Old scales, belonged to the French Jesuits, and dates to 1683, they were used in a mill at Cap de la Madeleine.

T. Lefebvre, Esq.

No. 3. This vault, in the olden time, was used for storage purposes. It was divided into four parts by walls about four feet in thickness, two of which were removed. During the occupancy, by the English Governors, this vault was used as a wine cellar. Being fire proof it now serves for storage of valuable documents.

———o———

No. 4. This vault was the principal kitchen of the Château. The great fire-place had a crane on which the pots were hung, and up the chimney is an iron rod on which hams and bacon were smoked. A recess at the side is where a wheel was, used to turn the spit and generally worked by a dog. In this vault may be seen—

A. A wooden water pipe of the first water-works in Montreal 1801-1815.

Starke, Esq.

B. The Cross of the Recollet Church, built 1692, demolished in 1866. In this Church worshipped for some time both Catholics and Protestants. At the time of the conquest there being no Protestant Church in Montreal, the Recollets kindly gave the use of theirs for the Services of the English.

C. Antique wrought iron vane from the old Recollet Church.

D. The weathervane from old St. Gabriel Church, the first Protestant Church built in Montreal, 1792.

Chief Legault.

E. An old Canadian chair, frame only, found in the attic of the Château.

F. A very finely wrought weather vane, from one of the out-buildings of the Château.

G. Iron knee of the King's ship l'Orignal, sunk in the harbor of Quebec in 1750, while being launched.

Quebec Harbor Commissioners.

———o———

No. 5. This vault was used as kitchen and bakery. In the side of the fire-place is the capacious oven, in as perfect condition as when in use nearly two centuries ago.

———o———

No. 6. This vault was used as a pantry or storeroom. In passing out of this vault the great thickness of the walls may be observed, starting with a width of seven feet they widen as the arch curves, and the crown of the arch, (the thinest part,) is four feet to the floor above.

———o———

No. 7. This vault is divided by a number of arches, and was used for various purposes, at one period it was the guard room, for the sentries who were posted in front of the building.

———o———

No. 8. In this vault, now used for coal, is where the well was in the olden time.

———o———

No. 9. In this vault may be seen—

A. The main door and fanlight of the Chapel of Notre-Dame de Victoire, built in 1713. demolished 1900. This Chapel was built to commemorate the destruction of Admiral Walker's fleet below Quebec in 1711. Governor Ramezay took part in the laying of the corner stone of the Chapel.

B. Vestibule door, carved panels, from the above.

C. Wainscotting from the Chapel.

———o———

The original tablets from Nelson's Monument, made in London, 1808. The Monument was restored in 1900, these tablets being replaced by granite ones, were presented to the Château by the Citizens Committee.

———o———

In front of the Château is the Louisbourg gun weighing four tons. This gun was on the French man-of-war "La Prudente," sunk by the English in the harbor of Louisbourg in 1758. It was raised in 1900, brought to Montreal and presented to the Château by

S. Coulson, Esq.

The gun carriage is an old English one, made of oak, in 1843. Was presented by the Honorable Dr. Borden, Minister of Militia.

The pile of solid shot numbers 91. The shot was brought from Cuba, after the Spanish American War.

R. W. McLachlan, Esq.

The two figures, Commerce and Industry, are the work of the talented Canadian artist Ph. Hébert. Were placed on the Post-Office in 1875, removed 1899, and presented to the Château by Judge L. W. Sicotte.
